

DOM NEWS BLAST

The LSU Department of Medicine Weekly Communication

The Aesculapian Society recently reported its 2024 Executive Summary. The Internal Medicine Clerkship received a course grade of "Excellent" (scale of Excellent, Good, Acceptable, Fair, and Poor). Thanks to all of our clerkship faculty leadership including Dr. Greg Ardoin (Lafayette), Dr. Dean Lauret (Baton Rouge), Dr. Neeraj Jain (Cardiology), and Dr. Victoria Burke (Infectious Diseases), as well as all the faculty, fellows and house staff in Lafayette, Baton Rouge, and New Orleans.

Great job!

Dr. Paul Harch (Emergency Medicine) was recently interviewed for an article on the use of hyperbarics to save a little girls nose after a dog bite. You can watch the interview here:

<https://www.wvlv.com/video/news/local/hyperbarics-save-little-girls-nose-following-disfiguring-dog-bite/289-85279755-6a43-4377-b536-4354e60bf050>

Dr. Paul Harch (Emergency Medicine) recently published an invited editorial in Science, Public Health Policy and the Law on the "Potential Contribution of Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy to A New Vision of Transformative Medical Research via NIH to Make America Healthy Again"

<https://publichealthpolicyjournal.com/letter-to-the-editor-potential-contribution-of-hyperbaric-oxygen-therapy-to-a-new-vision-of-transformative-medical-research-via-nih-to-make-america-healthy-again/>