The LSU Department of Medicine Weekly Communication

Dr. Michael Hagensee (Infectious Diseases) is a multi principal investigator (MPI) on a recently awarded 5-year, $3.1M R01 entitled “The role of antiretroviral therapy in susceptibility to oral human papillomavirus (HPV) infection” from the NIH/ National Institute of Dental & Craniofacial Research.

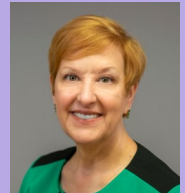

Strong work, Dr. Hagensee!

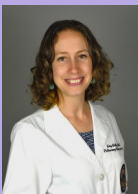

Dr. Sanjay Kamboj (Hospital Medicine) was recently elected to serve as Vice Chair for the LSU Council of Faculty Advisors for 2024 - 2025. This council serves as a liaison between the university and the faculties of the campuses that comprise Louisiana State University. The council will communicate to LSU, through the Office of the President, the views and concerns of the faculties on institution-wide matters regarding the academic and professional policies of LSU campuses.

Dr. Cynthia J. Brown was senior author on this publication in the Journal of Multimorbidity and Comorbidity, which examined the burden of comorbidity among inpatients based on age, race, and sex. This was the first report of change (an increase) in multimorbidity among a national sample of adult inpatients (24.5M) using validated measures.

Dr. Amy Wolfe, Dr. Juzar Ali and colleagues from the Section of Pulmonary/ Critical Care recently published this paper on the impact of an initiative to provide on-site primary care and care coordination in the Wetmore Tuberculosis Clinic to enhance TB patient management.
